Welcome!

The Climate Analysis Indicators Tool (CAIT) is an information and analysis tool on global climate change developed by the World Resources Institute. CAIT provides a comprehensive and comparable database of greenhouse gas emissions data (including all major sources and sinks) and other climate-relevant indicators. CAIT can be used to analyze a wide range of climate-related data questions and to help support future policy decisions made under the Climate Convention and in other fora.

- Register and Access CAIT.
- Already registered? Login.
- CAIT News and FAQ.

What's New

CAIT 8.0 Now Online.
CAIT 8.0 features international GHG emissions data through 2007 and updated CO2 projection data. Where applicable, socioeconomic and natural factor indicators have been updated as well.

CAIT-UNFCCC 4.0 Now Online.
CAIT-UNFCCC 4.0 features revised international GHG emissions data through 2008 for Annex-I countries and updated documentation.

Related Publications:

- Charting the Midwest
- Navigating the Numbers
- Target: Intensity
- Growing in the Greenhouse