

Monday
May 16, 2011

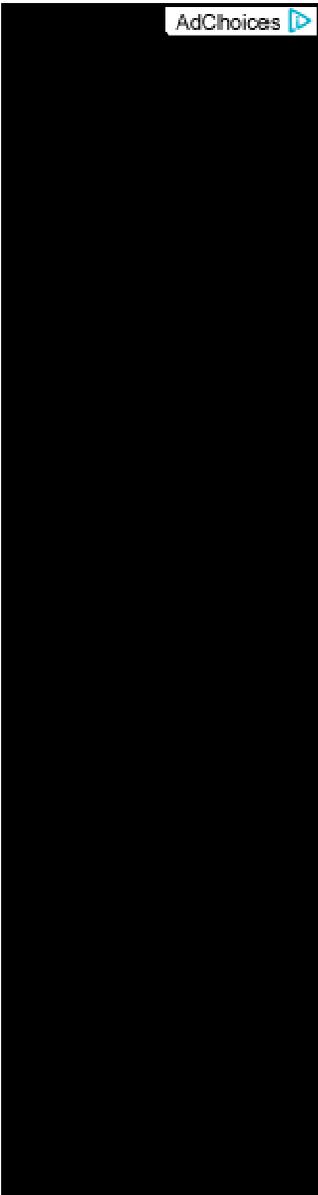

HOME NEWS SPORTS BUSINESS LIFESTYLES ENTERTAINMENT TRAVEL OPINION OBITUARIES

Business

Comments (4) | Add a comment
Back to: Business

Construction industry still suffering

AdChoices

JASON BEAN/LAS VEGAS REVIEW-JOURNAL an, left, and Thomas Pype work on a staircase Thursday at adquarters. The local industry has lost 29,800 jobs in 12

BY HUBBLE SMITH
LAS VEGAS REVIEW-JOURNAL

Posted: Mar. 13, 2010 | 12:00 a.m.

0

0

California lost the most construction jobs in the 12-month period through January while Nevada led the nation with the largest percentage decrease in construction employment, the Associated General Contractors of America reported.

Thirty-eight states showed double-digit declines in construction employment, with Nevada leading at 29.9 percent, or 29,800

Tools

- Email
- Print
- Save
- Share
- RSS

Get Your FREE
2011
Credit
Score

jobs, the Wash [redacted] D.C.-based industry group reported Wednesday. Arizona was next at 26 percent, followed by Colorado at 22.2 percent and Idaho at 21 percent.

"Construction employment is dropping everywhere and plummeting almost everywhere," AGC chief economist Ken Simonson said. "Looking at this data, it is quite clear that the construction industry has yet to hit bottom."

California lost 128,700 construction jobs over the past 12 months, an 18 percent decline, while Texas lost 95,600 jobs (down 14.7 percent) and Florida lost 90,700 jobs (down 20.4 percent).

North Dakota had the smallest decline (1 percent) in construction employment.

Simonson noted that 31 states lost construction jobs between December and January. Weather can heavily affect month-to-month employment figures, he added.

The construction industry continues to bear the brunt of the economic downturn in Southern Nevada, where total employment fell 27.2 percent in 2009. High vacancy rates in all commercial markets, along with an excess inventory of new homes built over the last several years, have brought new construction to almost a standstill in Las Vegas.

The trailing 12-month total for commercial building permits in Southern Nevada has fallen from a peak of 1,600 in 2006 to slightly more than 200 in 2009. Residential permits fell from more than 40,000 to about 5,000 during the same period.

Stephen Miller, chairman of the economics department at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, said seasonally adjusted construction employment has fallen from a peak of 109,000 in early 2006 to 63,000, about where it was before the run-up in 2001.

"We added a lot of rooms and it turns out that was not a great decision," Miller said. "I think we're getting near the bottom. Permit data can't go below zero, right? It's been bouncing around the bottom for four months. It's unlikely we'll repeat what we saw in the last decade."

RELATED CONTENT

- Construction employment continues to drop
- Las Vegas loses 13,400 construction jobs in last year
- Nevada starting to see effect of stimulus money; 'too little, too late,' consultant says
- Nevada misses nationwide building bounce
- Economy showing some improvement in gaming, lagging in creation of jobs
- Industrial space available -- for a while
- 'Just not a lot going on'
- Nevada job loss continues
- Contractors propose tax credits, policy changes to spur rebound
- Contractors group outlines plans to stimulate local economy

With some trade groups reporting unemployment rates of 50 percent, Nevada's construction industry accounts for a third of all displaced workers receiving unemployment

Nevada's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate stood at 13 percent in January, compared with 9.6 percent a year ago.

Construction employment sank 28.7 percent from January 2009, natural resources and mining is down 6 percent and manufacturing is down 10.8 percent, the Nevada Department of Employment, Training and Rehabilitation reported.

Marketplace Ads and Co
Autos
Homes
Jobs
Employment Outlook
Classifieds
Find a Business

Second-quarter hiring prospects for Las Vegas remain among the weakest in the nation, Manpower's quarterly Employment Outlook Survey found. Only 13 percent of companies surveyed plan to hire more workers from April to June, while 19 percent expect to reduce their payrolls. Sixty-one percent will stay the same.

Job prospects appear best in manufacturing and professional and business services, the survey said. Industries with the most job openings include construction, transportation and warehousing, and retail trade, financial services and government. Leisure and hospitality hiring is expected to remain unchanged.

Findit
Featured Business

AGC officials in Washington are urging the Senate to extend the extension to the nation's surface transportation program to accelerate stimulus-funded construction projects.

"As privately funded construction activity continues to decline, federal investments in infrastructure are often the only source of jobs between a job and unemployment for what's left of the industry," Simonson said.

Contact reporter Hubble Smith at hsmith@reviewjournal.com or 702-383-0491.

Construction employment

State	January 09	January 10	% change	Jobs lost
Nevada	99,500	69,700	-29.9	29,800
Arizona	154,800	114,500	-26.0	40,300
Colorado	149,300	116,100	-22.2	33,200
Idaho	39,000	30,800	-21.0	8,200
Florida	443,800	353,100	-20.4	90,700
Oregon	82,300	66,400	-19.3	15,900
Washington	180,400	146,000	-19.1	34,400
Kentucky	79,100	64,200	-18.8	14,900
Missouri	127,200	103,700	-18.5	23,500
California	713,400	584,700	-18.0	128,700

Source: Associated General Contractors of America

Trending topics: AGC Simonson | Associated General Contractors | business | construction employment | economy | graphic statistics sidebar | Hubble Smith | job loss unemployment | national rankings | stephen miller

Comments (4)

Share your thoughts on this story. You are not currently logged in.

You must be registered to comment. Register | Sign in | Terms and Conditions

Some comments may not display immediately due to an automatic filter. These comments will be reviewed within 24 hours. Please do not submit a comment more than once.

Note: Comments made by reporters and editors of the Las Vegas Review-Journal are presented with a yellow background.

Report abuse

wettap wrote on March 16, 2010 02:54 PM:

Why would any reasonable employer be looking to hire anyone?
Obama has not hidden his desire to punish America's achievers. He views business as the enemy.

What employer will go out on a limb in that sort of climate?

[http://www.bloomberg.com/apps/news?
pid=20601087&sid=aXaMufRb.FA0](http://www.bloomberg.com/apps/news?pid=20601087&sid=aXaMufRb.FA0)

Unemployment isn't going to end soon. So the sooner we rid ourselves of the Socialist Utopians who are keeping America jobless, the better.

Report abuse

Don Best wrote on March 13, 2010 11:20 AM:

Many of our recent job seekers from down South will remain, however. It's better here than there. Plus there is no admission charge to attend our sorry local schools. Oh well, at least they want to work. Maybe people should think about having less children.

Easy to make 'em, a lot harder to raise them.

Report abuse

jimbojones wrote on March 13, 2010 09:02 AM:

I, for one, am glad. Most of the construction workers are recent transplants. Maybe they'll go back to wherever they came from.

Report abuse

TONY wrote on March 13, 2010 06:43 AM:

